

Elodie Holmes Liquid Light Glass

Elodie Holmes Liquid Light Glass is a contemporary glass studio and gallery located in the Baca Street Art District at Baca Street Studios, a complex of six studio/galleries. Elodie is the owner of the complex, as well as one of the resident artists. Visitors can watch Elodie blow glass in her studio, and shop in her gallery. They can also visit the other artists at work in her complex or shop in their galleries. You can see whimsical glass art, lamp-worked glass, and bronze sculpting in the complex. Gold, silver and stone jewelry is available, and photography is on display, as well. Elodie Holmes has been blowing glass in Santa Fe for 25 years. Her highly individual pieces are hand-sculpted using the traditional techniques of glass blowing and sculpting molten glass with special tools. Through flame work, cutting, polishing and etching, Elodie creates sculptures, ornaments and decorative furnishings such as vases, bowls, platters and paperweights. Elodie's art glass can be found in museums across the country and around the world. Come see the spontaneity that marks the work at Elodie Holmes Liquid Light Glass.
